

Relaxing the current broadcast ownership rules to allow greater concentration of power and influence in the hands of fewer corporate owners does not further the public interest in a diverse, open, democratic society. Please don't blithely assume the web will provide, it is a very different medium from broadcast journalism and has its own challenges. The FCC needs to explain how any proposed changes will benefit American democracy, and you haven't done that yet.